C&P of reply below

Good Morning,
If the extension is two storey then planning permission would be required.
If it is a single storey side then you can build under permitted development.
Also it is by your main access door, the regulations are more restricted for porches and I think it would require planning as a porch due to the existing porch.
As it is on the side of the property, behind a principle extension, I would treat it like a side extension which allows you up to 4m high and up to half the width of the existing house, under permitted development.
Many Thanks
Alexandra

(There was an earlier reply which seemed to think that the extension would be visible from the road in front of the house. This is not the case. Although this is nominally the "front" door, it is not visible from the road as it is on the side of the house and sight of it is blocked by the rest of the house.)
