Hi Mared

Yes, definitely, the noise survey needs to be carried out up front for the reasons you mention.

Regards Nick

Hi Nick

Thanks for your comments on this one – you recommend an informative is attached to the decision notice should we be granting consent, that a noise survey is carried out in accordance with provisions set out in TAN 11 – Should this not be required up front prior to granting planning permission? As wouldn't we need the results of the survey to inform whether the noise impacts to proposed occupants are considered to be acceptable before granting planning permission?

Thanks

Mared
