YOUR COMMENTS ON THE CASE

There is a strong consumer and retailer demand for poultry products reared in the united kingdom, this is driven by confidence in the higher animal welfare and food safety standards present in the UK, alongside the reduced carbon footprint of locally produced British eggs compared with eggs imported from abroad.

Having constructed several hundred poultry buildings in the UK, this proposal makes provision for this locally sourced low carbon food with a development of minor scale relative to other UK poultry units, which has excellent design and layout for such a facility and a landscaping scheme that will enhance the visual characteristics, diversity and ecology of the area.
