YOUR COMMENTS ON THE CASE

In this area farming is an important part of the rural economy and it should be remembered that the Ceiriog valley has been shaped and cultivated for centuries by farmers and farming. It is important in my view that the land should continue to support the local community not just from a heritage point of view but also as an active commodity. In these uncertain times support for locally owned sustainable and ethical farming should be a priority for local government. It is becoming increasingly clear that imported food prices are rising due to the fall in the pounds value against other currencies so the case for promoting local business in an area that has been farmed for centuries should be carefully reconsidered, especially with the subsequent benefits for local employment.
