Dear Sir

It has come to my attention that Wrexham Council recently rejected a proposal to create fracking sites. I applaud them for this. I agree with the Council's reasons for rejecting this proposal and feel it is environmentally unsustainable contrary to the Minerals Planning Policy Wales.
I believe this proposal should it be pushed through would detrimentally affect the countryside and the quality of the natural environment. Even the best estimates from the pro-fracking lobby state they will only manage the stake 5% of the gas that is released by this method. I cannot understand how this is proclaimed a efficient, and what happens to the other 95%. I believe that Green renewable energies are the way forward, wind farms, hydro, geo thermal etc. These forms of energy production could still create jobs, provide energy independence for this country, in fact provide everything that Frank says it will provide without the nasty side effects.

In conclusion I applaud Wrexham Council for its stance on this issue and would urge other councils to take note.

Yours Faithfully
